Corrigan's Own Story: 'All a Mistake'

(Editor's Note—One of the strangest stories ever told—that of a flight across the turbulent Atlantic "by mistake"—was narrated today to International News Service by Douglas P. Corrigan, 31-year-old Los Angeles flier, who crossed from New York to Dublin in a $900 plane.)

BALDONNEL AIRPORT, Dublin, July 18 (INS)—I took off from New York early Sunday morning with the intention of flying back to Los Angeles without a stop.

It was a hurried take-off. I was anxious to get away from the Floyd Bennett authorities who didn't want me to leave. They had held me up on a night takeoff which I had planned.

Shortly after taking off, I headed into the clouds and had to depend upon my compass. I set my course by what I thought was to the west. I flew all the way by compass. I couldn't see anything at all because of the clouds and I had to depend upon that instrument.

It was about 25 hours after the start that I decided I had better come down out of the clouds and have a look around. I came down expecting to see Los Angeles. Instead DUBLIN, July 18 (INS)—With the astounding explanation he had flown the Atlantic Ocean "by mistake," Douglas P. Corrigan set his nine-year-old $900 aerial "jalopy" down at Baldonnel airport today after a flight as courageous and unique as the immortal achievement of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Unheralded and unexpected, he landed at Baldonnel at 2:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. Boston time), just 28 hours and 13 minutes after taking off from Floyd Bennett airport, New York.

He ran straight into the arms of Irish customs authorities, who for some time after his arrival held him up on the ground he had no right to land on Irish soil without official permission.

Flying Crate In Ireland

"When I took off from Floyd Bennett Airport," he said, "I headed out toward the ocean to escape the New York aeronautical authorities.

"I thought I turned back West but found out later I had crossed the ocean by mistake.

"I went up high and was over the clouds for the entire trip. When I thought the proper time had elapsed, I descended expecting to see Los Angeles beneath me.

"Instead it was Ireland!"

Without passport, landing permit or other credentials of the sort, Corrigan went straight to a telephone and called the United States legation.

"HUNG UP ON ME"

"I told them who I was and what I had done," he said. "They said they never heard of me. I guess they thought it was someone trying to play a joke.

"They hung up the phone." Incredible as it may seem, Corrigan's amazing description of his epic flight bore some touch of logic. When he flew non-stop from California to New York a week ago, the 2700-mile flight took him just ten minutes under 28 hours.

He had been in the air only a little more than this time when as he said, he ducked down from above the clouds to get his bearings and learned—to his undying amazement, he soberly declared—that he had entered aviation's Hall of Fame with a solo flight across the Atlantic.

When he landed at Baldonnel, Corrigan had but 15 gallons left of the 320 gallons of gasoline he had loaded aboard his ancient "crate" for the takeoff.

Early reports said Corrigan planned to continue on to Croydon Aerodrome, near London, but it later appeared he would spend the night at the American legation here.

Except for grime on his face, Corrigan looked as fresh as though he had only crossed the Irish Sea from Holyhead when he stepped out of his plane.

He was wearing a leather jacket and leather trousers. He was immediately surrounded by customs officials and army officers who bombarded him with questions. The customs men carried out their duty to the letter, placing the flier under virtual custody until he had completed the necessary formalities.

When this had been done, he motored to the United States legation in Phoenix Park. American Minister John D. Cudahy, who will be Corrigan's host while in Ireland, was jokingly revealed by the flier as a skeptical diplomat.

Before the legation hung up, Corrigan revealed, a spokesman on the other end of the line promised to call back, presumably after he had checked up on the flier's story.

"They did call back," he said, "and now I've been invited over to the legation. I'll probably spend the night there."

What happened was that after Corrigan telephoned, the surprised legation called up a local newspaper office and asked whether it was correct that a flier named Douglas Corrigan had flown the Atlantic.

When assured that a pilot by that name had taken off from New York and could have reached Dublin, the legation phoned him back with congratulations and invitations.

During the interim, Corrigan was having it out with the customs men. They had asked him for his papers and received the unexpected reply that he had none.

Corrigan was then held pending inquiries, but meanwhile officers of the Irish air force, overcome with admiration for the American, told customs men they would be responsible for him until the American legation made up its mind to vouch for him.

He had told no one where he was going and had asked no one to welcome him.

EPIC FEAT

His was a stunt in many ways unparalleled even by the brilliant feat of Colonel Lindbergh. For no one, in all history, had ever tried to bridge the Atlantic in an airplane so old fashioned and outdated that its pilot had to flip the ship sideways to see over its gas-tanks through the windows.

Corrigan got away from Floyd Bennett airport at 5:17 a. m. (Boston Time) yesterday, telling officials he was going to fly back to the West Coast.

He had alid into New York just a week previously after a non-stop flight from Los Angeles at a speed of a little less than 100 miles an hour to spend a brief vacation in the metropolis.

When he left the New York air field yesterday he had 320 gallons of gasoline and 16 gallons of oil on board.

WEST IS EAST

With a casual farewell, he lifted the heavily-laden little ship off the ground and then, to the surprise of the few spectators, turned it toward the sea instead of the western horizon.

Even more surprised were officials of Baldonnel when the out-dated plane, remodeled by the pilot himself, dropped down out of cloudy skies and rolled to a stop at the airport.

FLYING CRATE DOOR HELD BY OLD WIRE, NAIL

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)

—When Douglas Corrigan climbed into his dilapidated airplane to fly the North Atlantic, he had to wire himself in. The knob had come off the cabin door, so he closed it with a piece of baling wire hooked around a nail.

His plane had 45 less horsepower than that of Charles A. Lindbergh, who crossed to Paris in 1927. It was the same make and type of ship used by Al and Fred Kroyer a few years ago to set a world's endurance record of 653 hours at Meriden, Miss.

Man of The Hour

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service.)

A very keen sense of humor and a devil-may-care courage both played their part today in sending Douglas Corrigan of Los Angeles off on an adventure that for hours kept the world guessing as to his plans.

The 31-year-old transport pilot who headed east in the direction of the Atlantic in his 8-year-old aerial jalopy after announcing his intention to fly to the West Coast is a whimsical figure.

Soon after he reached here last week after a non-stop flight from Los Angeles, a newspaperman got him on the telephone and asked for an interview.

"A little later—not now," he said. "I'm busy. I've got to hunt up a new bicycle wheel for my undercarriage."

Corrigan arrived at Roosevelt Field unheralded and unannounced on the evening Howard Hughes and his $200,000 aerial Argosy took off on a flight around the world. He revealed casually he had made the coast-to-coast trip without a stop in 27 hours and 56 minutes, with only a chocolate bar for food.

For several years Corrigan was a mechanic at the Ryan Aircraft factory in San Diego, Cal., where he helped assemble Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis."

His own craft somewhat resembles that famous ship, with neither radio nor instruments for blind flying, and fuel tanks so oversized he has to tip the plane to see out of a window. Corrigan is holder of a transport license and is a veteran of twelve years in the air. His battered but airworthy plane cost $500.

amazed aviation authorities, but his achievement in flying the turbulent ocean in a craft unequipped with radio or blind flying devices and pieced together by the pilot's own hands staggered their imagination.

The slight, fair-haired airman had installed huge gasoline tanks himself, using every available inch of space and planning himself between them in such a way that forward vision was impossible unless he banked the ship from side to side.

LINDY HAD PERISCOPE

Colonel Lindbergh's plane had a similar handicap, but his at least was equipped with a periscope enabling him to see above the cowl.

In addition, the world knew when Colonel Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt field in May of 1927 that he was headed for Paris, and by the time he reached the French capital a crowd of countless thousands was on hand to welcome him.

In this respect, Corrigan's trip was without parallel or precedent. He had, so far as could be ascertained, no passport or landing permit.

Reports were that he had been denied permission by the United States Bureau of Air Commerce last year to make an ocean crossing. He had no advance agents, no advance publicity, no admiring crowds to extend the hand of welcome when, dirty and begrimed, he came down to land with the whole of a tossing ocean behind him.

So utterly unprepared were airport officials and even newspapermen for his landing here details of his unequalled feat were delayed in reaching public ken.

BIRTH FIGHT IN LONDON

Motherhood Law
Challenged by Noted Doctor

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—Two women were on the jury sworn today to decide the case in which Dr. Aleck William Bourne, one of London's foremost obstetric surgeons, has challenged England's rarely invoked statute against operations to prevent motherhood.

Dr. Bourne is accused of performing an illegal operation on a 15-year-old girl. The girl was the victim of an attack by soldiers in a stable of the famed Royal Horse Guards' barracks in Whitehall.

Dr. Bourne deliberately sought to be prosecuted. Medical circles have made the case an issue in an attempt to arouse public opinion to give physicians wider discretion.

His counsel, therefore, insisted at the outset that the word "unlawful" be inserted in the indictment describing the operation. Harley street specialists—London's most fashionable physicians—and socialites jammed the Old Bailey court for the trial. Long lines of others vainly sought admission.

The prosecution's main evidence was given by a woman physician, Joan Malleon, who arranged with Dr. Bourne to perform the operation. She testified it was fully justified for the sake of the girl's health and future.

Bridegroom Is Bailed; Boy Auto Victim Buried

Final scene in a strange and tragic series of coincidences was enacted in Sacred Heart church, East Boston, today, when funeral services were held there for six-year-old Thomas Ventullo of Paris street, East Boston.

It was in front of the church that the boy was killed by an automobile Saturday.

Alleged driver of the car was Everett McNeil, 22, of West Eagle street, East Boston, whose wedding in the rectory of the church was delayed until almost midnight by the accident.

Arrested on a charge of manslaughter and bailed hours later, McNeil finally took as his bride pretty Miss Barbara MacCulloch, 21, of Rollins street, South End.

She had waited tearfully for him outside the East Boston police station.

Today she was with him in East Boston District Court, when he was held in $1000. His case was continued to August 4.

He was charged today not only with manslaughter but also with driving to endanger, leaving the scene of an accident without identifying himself and driving without a license.

Waiving a plea, he furnished surety and was released, to resume his interrupted honeymoon.

Arraigned with him and released in $1000 bail was Clarence Abbott, 21, of Falcon street, East Boston.

Police said Abbott was arrested with McNeil but denied being in the automobile at the time the Ventullo boy was killed.

Booked at first on a charge of manslaughter, Abbott was today held only as an alleged accessory.

Lupe today confirmed this story to this writer regretfully and almost in tears.

She confessed that after five years and a half of married life, she and Johnny just couldn't make a go of it. She said she had signed her petition for a divorce and that a property settlement already had been arranged.

"Please," she said, "this time it is not publicity. I have tried hard, but we just can't get along. I love him, and he loves me, but we are both much happier apart. While I was in New York on the stage away from him and our constant quarreling I was an entirely different girl."

Lupe, the little actress who came here from Mexico 12 years ago, was one of the first foreign importations. She won almost immediate fame in "The Gaucho," one of Douglas Fairbanks' silent pictures.

Called "The Mexican Firecracker" because of her excitable disposition, she achieved fame in the past few months in Cole Porter's musical, "Candlelight." In fact, some of the Eastern reviewers accused her of stealing the show.

Johnny, in his way, has been almost as successful as Lupe. His jungle interludes so satisfied the picture-going public that although other producers have tried to introduce a substitute for Tarzan, the public has demanded Johnny in the role.

"You'll probably make up with Johnny," I told her, "as you have done in the past."

"Not this time," she said, with a choke in her voice. "I am so tired of fighting. And when I leave to open my play in New York next month I must have peace of mind. It is the biggest thing in my life, and I am eager to have it as much of a success on Broadway as it was in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago."

Johnny, as usual, said nothing.

'Little Steel' Chief Hits CIO 'Blackjack'

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—Charles M. White, of Cleveland, a official of the Republic Steel Corporation, told the Senate civil liberties committee today his company "does not expect to be black-jacked" into signing a contract with a "professional" labor union.

Describing the CIO as a "kingdom" set up by John L. Lewis, White testified that Republic prefers to deal with a union in which employees are given choice of their officers.

White, vice-president in charge of operations for Republic, said he believed all CIO officers were appointed.

White read the committee a statement of the Republic's labor policy which guaranteed collective bargaining and represented. White said, the long-time labor policy of the company.

Chairman LaFollette (Prog.) Wisconsin, read from an address Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of Republic, made on May 24, 1934, to the Iron and Steel Institute. Girdler urged steel leaders to refuse to deal with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, or Lewis of the Committee of Industrial Organization.

White said he and Girdler were opposed to dealing with "professional" unions.

"It always has been our policy that our employees should not have to pay someone for the privilege of talking to the boss," he declared.

Challenge U. S. Order On Stations

The Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission today challenged the federal court's order to close 88 New Haven Railroad stations. The commission voted to continue with hearings on the railroad's petitions to eliminate the stations and 63 trains in this state. The railroad abandoned the stations yesterday on the ruling made by a federal judge in New Haven court last week.

Attorney A. W. Blackman, railroad counsel, also objected to the commission's action on the ground that the federal order abandonment took precedence and the federal commission no longer had jurisdiction.

The petitions are still before this commission," J. Burke Sullivan, chairman, retorted. "We are going to hold hearings and make a decision."

Sullivan further suggested that evidence be completed on two cases, involving abandonment of Yarmouth-Provincetown service and terminal changes in Boston, so that they could be used as test cases.

It was indicated that the case will go to the state Supreme Court, and that in the meantime the railroads may reopen service to some of the closed stations.

Blackman refused to withdraw the petitions, on which the commission has been hearing evidence for five months.

HUNT 'IRISH ROSE'

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—Scotland Yard authorities today issued a description of George Brain, truck driver, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of "Irish Rose" Atkins near Wimbledon's famed Center tennis court.

Sullivan Picked as Dever Aide

When Chairman J. Burke Sullivan of the State Department of Public Utilities resigns in September, he will become second assistant attorney-general.

This was announced today by Attorney-General Paul A. Dever, after Sullivan had confirmed reports that he intended to give up the public utilities chairmanship in the fall.

The shift will mean a reduction of $2000 in Sullivan's present $3000 salary but will enable him, he said, to campaign for Governor Hurley's re-election.

Payroll Tax Explained

The decision of state authorities not to collect one per cent out of your pay envelope for "unemployment insurance" has nothing to do with the one per cent collected for social security.

Laurence P. Harrington, executive secretary of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission, asked that this be made clear to wage-earners today.

The one per cent for social security still is deducted from your pay. Social security is a federal tax. "Unemployment insurance" is a state tax. This, for the time being, at least, no longer to be collected because the state believes employers' contributions alone will be enough.

Ryan Playboy Ordered to Pay and to "drunken playboys" who possess fortunes which they do not earn and do not use for good purpose.

Mrs. Ryan and her husband were married in North Carolina after a brief romance, and Ryan left her almost immediately after the ceremony. Ryan then insisted he had no recollection of marrying the Morganton, N. C. girl.

Mrs. Ryan is the mother of a son, born to her six weeks before she married Ryan. She later charged Ned Parks, a soda fountain attendant of Washington, D. C., was father of the child.

Ryan did not defend his wife's suit. This fact moved Justice Cotillo to further criticism of Ryan, remarking he had displayed "no manhood" after having publicly charged that his wife "trapped" him into marriage while he was drunk, and then failing to prove his allegations.

He called Ryan "a perfect example of pampered youth, who is the recipient of a very large income." He did not mention the amount of Ryan's income or whether the amount of the alimony is in excess of one-third of that income.

Moreover, he said, it made no difference to him what the amount of Mrs. Ryan's income was before she married.

Her counsel was awarded $7500 in fees.

"We have here the proof, which is becoming more frequent every day," said Justice Cotillo's decision, "that the possession of great wealth which the possessor did nothing to earn does the possessor no good, but often grievous harm."

"The defendant is indeed the counterpart of those 'poor little rich girls' whose only ambition in life is to try to dissipate fortunes, created by the forefathers through the sweat of honest toil of American people, in jumping from one matrimonial venture into another."

"The only difference in the present case is that the recipient of any financial bonanza in this case will be an American citizen rather than a broken-down impoverished foreign so-called nobility."

Ryan, he said left his wife " penniless and unprotected" while he went off on a pleasure trip to Europe.

"The defendant must be taught the lesson that American womanhood, no matter how humble her station in life, cannot be treated as a chattel, and afterwards dropped like a discarded toy or ornament by a drunken playboy."

Hurley, Cahill Back Big March by Labor

ing nothing for our half-million people out of work.

"Governor Hurley has been lax in preparing his relief program. Where is the leadership on the Hill?"

"The state legislators have shown callous indifference and mass mental degeneracy by kicking the unemployment relief problem around like a football in the interest of partisan politics."

At the same time, Representative Charles W. Hedges, Quincy Republican, challenged legislative leaders to solve the unemployment problem or see "the rank and file members take it over."

"Both Republican and Democratic," he asserted, "are cognizant of the real unemployment problems and are sincerely serious of doing everything to alleviate them."

Hedges said he blamed "leaders of both parties, from the governor down, for lack of action relative to unemployment legislation."

Meanwhile, district labor leaders from all parts of the state hurried to Boston to attend today's council session at the A. F. of L. headquarters, a meeting which may mobilize 700 local unions to march to the State House Wednesday.

According to Kenneth I. Taylor, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, the meeting was scheduled for 5 p. m. today at the organization's headquarters, 15 Beacon street, with himself, President Galelee and the 11 vice-presidents attending.

"The mob on Beacon Hill is engaged in a political dog-fight" was the ultimatum from Galelee to Governor Hurley and the others, "while 500,000 distressed men and women in this Commonwealth face eviction and even starvation through complete lack of any prospect of employment.

"As the only voice of the working men and women of the Commonwealth, the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor will issue an immediate call for a special session of its executive council."

"The purpose is to call upon all officers of its 700 affiliated local unions to assemble for a march to the State House to exercise the sacred right of petition and the privilege of criticizing the unbridled sympathy of the fiddling Neros on Beacon Hill."

Speaker Cahill, in a letter today to Galelee, said:

"I share your concern about the present deadlock on Beacon Hill. The governor, under the constitution, has the sole power to prorogue the legislature."

"The governor has repeatedly vetoed every move made by the legislature to send money to the cities and towns for employment on local highway construction and maintenance. He twice disapproved $8,000,000 and only last Saturday vetoed $3,500,000."

"The governor, in seeking to force the legislature to divert money from the highway fund to the general fund, so that he can present a fictitious picture of the state deficit, is risking the loss of more than $1,000,000 in federal contributions to Massachusetts."

Fog Hampers Unit Drilling Of YD Forces

BOURNE, July 18—Fog today slowed down the Yankee Division, 2000 strong, as it began to work in regimental units drilling for the final demonstration Wednesday and Thursday.

The ground troops were hampered by the fog and the air force grounded.

The usefulness of radio communication was established when a private on the 60,000 acre range was located in an hour after a hurry call had come through for him to give a blood transfusion at a Quincy Hospital.

Tomorrow the men will carry out maneuvers as brigades and on the following two days will be drawn into one unit, which will stage the big mock war featuring the encampment.

On these days the entire division will direct its "attack" against a mythical enemy, whose part will be taken by the 101st engineers. On Friday and Saturday they will pack up and go home.

Tomorrow night a portion of the division will spend the night in the woods, simulating a unit halting on the march prior to a general attack.

More than 50,000 persons jammed the camp to witness the division general review in full war-time regalia.

The colorful parade was an official dedication of the camp as "Camp Edwards" in honor of the late Major-General Clarence H. Edwards, who led the Yankee Division in the World War.

Governor Hurley, commander-in-chief of the National Guard, and Adjutant General Charles H. Cole watched the troops from the reviewing stand.

The first day of activities for the camp under juvenile leadership will be machine gun instruction on the regular Fort Devens range. When this course ends the boys will have undergone instruction in every phase of infantry warfare. Various day in camp was marked by a parade of the entire corps. Thousands of relatives of the boys gathered from all parts of New England to witness the review.

Roosevelt Quits Cares to Fish

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, EN ROUTE TO PANAMA, July 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt relaxed far from the cares of state today en route to fishing grounds of the equatorial Pacific.

Wished luck and a pleasant voyage by President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico, the Chief Executive was ready to continue his southward course which began Saturday from San Diego.

Greetings of the Mexican president were conveyed to him when the Houston anchored off Cedros Island, Lower California, after an all-night run from San Diego.

Members of his staff indicated he would take no part in political developments during the voyage and would attend only to the most urgent state matters, brought to his attention by radio.

Frankfurter For High Court

At his summer home in Heath, Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard law school today maintained the tradition of men who may be offered a place in the United States Supreme Court.

"It's raining out here now, and there's thunder and lightning," he offered conversationally when asked how he felt about the prospect.

Asked if he would take the position if offered, he replied that it would be "out of place" for him to speculate on such matters.

Prof. Frankfurter has been seen as probable successor to the late Justice Benjamin Cardozo.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 18 (INS)—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, ousted chairman of the New Deal's half-billion dollar TVA, was scheduled to take the witness stand before a congressional investigating committee late today to tell his long-delayed story of alleged mismanagement in the TVA—the story he once refused to relate to President Roosevelt.

2 Liners Dock With Returning Hub Tourists

Two steamships incoming from foreign travel resorts docked in Boston today to debark passengers.

The Scythia of the Cunard White Star Line berths at East Boston discharged vacationists taken aboard at Liverpool, Belfast and Greenock.

Canadian National Steamship's steamer Lady Nelson called at Commonwealth Pier to debark passengers and discharge a cargo of freight from British Guiana and the British West Indies.

RACE HORSE ARRIVES

Arriving here on the United States Lines steamer American Merchant were Mrs. Janet Aitken, 24, of London, recently divorced wife of Peter Aitken, son of Lord Beaverbrook, the London publisher, and her three-year-old daughter, Caroline Ann.

The English divorcee is the former Miss Janet McNeill of Halifax, N. S. She is on her way to spend six weeks there with her parents.

On board consigned to New York was the racehorse Brimrose which ran third in the Grand National this year.

BOY, A CROSSER ALONE

The American Merchant carried 61 passengers back from Europe, 14 of whom landed here.

Making the crossing alone, William Murphy, Jr., 8, who has been living in Ireland for five years, arrived on the Anchor Line Transylvania to rejoin his father and stepmother.

Among other passengers returning from European tours were James B. Hunter, Fore River naval architect, his wife and two children.

Human Chain Saves 3 in So. Boston Fire

Forming a human chain on a makeshift ladder, three South Boston policemen rescued Mrs. Mary Rayvot and her two children from death in flames early today.

Dispatched to a West Eighth Street apartment house blaze by radio, the officers arrived before the fire apparatus and heard screams of Mrs. Rayvot and her children, Bernard, 13, and Walter, three.

Blocked on the first floor by flames, Sergeant Patrick J. O'Reilly sent Patrolmen Charles Hewitt and Lawrence Seale to the rear of the building.

The pair found a home-made ladder and raised it to the third floor. O'Reilly fought through smoke to the woman's side.

Walter, ill with chicken-pox, was nearly overcome by smoke as his frantic mother handed him to the officer. Down the shaking ladder he was passed, followed by his older brother. Then Mrs. Rayvot was carried to safety.

Mary Fleming, 22, and Marion Honan, 25, next-door neighbors, discovered the fire and roused Mrs. Anna O'Brien, who rang in the alarm. The flames gutted the three-story building, causing damage of nearly $2000.

$31,300 Here for Peabody P. O. Site

A government check for $31,300 for payment for the site for a new postoffice in the vicinity of Summer and Foster streets, Peabody, was received from Washington today.

The money will be turned over to the Warren Five-Cent Savings Bank as soon as action is approved by the judge of the United States district court.

FIREMAN RECOVERS

LAWRENCE, July 18—Private Wilfred A. McAvoy of Engine 2 was reported recovering today from the effects of near-suffocation by smoke as he helped fight a blaze which swept a three-story house in Union street.

Youth Held After Arrest in Surf

Herbert Delucca, 18, of North Bergen, N. J., was held in Salem today for a September term of the grand jury after his effort to escape arrest by plunging into the sea was foiled by Nahant Patrolman George Burnett.

When Burnett sought to serve a warrant on the youth the latter stripped off his clothes, under which he wore a bathing suit, and ran into the surf. Burnett got a bathing suit, followed him out, and made the arrest.

Battled Death To Live for Son's Sake

CHAPTER NINE

When Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow first appeared in Barbara Hutton's life he was unknown to the newspapers, to the European smart world in which Prince Alexis Mdivani had moved, and to all of Barbara's American friends.

Even now that he has become famous everywhere as the second husband of the dollar princess and the father of the heir to many American millions, not a great deal is known about him.

He himself is very reticent, he doesn't talk a great deal, he is both in looks and manner a typical Northerner.

The House of Haugwitz-Reventlow is a very, very old one and the title is sound and highly respected. There are Haugwitz-Reventlows in lands and farms in Denmark.

But they are by no means vast estates, nor was the count a wealthy man. There is a persistent story that his courtship of Barbara Hutton, which was a very elaborate one, cut deeply into his capital.

WON HER REAL LOVE

He won Barbara's real love—for two reasons.

First because she was completely convinced of his sincerity and second because he drew upon his Old-World traditions to make her feel that wealth was a great responsibility which should be cared for nobly, and that he wanted to help her do this.

Probably no two men in the world could be as different as Alexis Mdivani and Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow. They were the absolute poles in looks and temperament.

Mdivani was a Slav, lavish, worldly, and very gay—believing that life was a thing to enjoy, to use, to make every moment count.

Haugwitz-Reventlow is a Dane, and his outlook upon life is definitely a serious one.

He gave me the impression of sureness, of confidence in himself, of belief in his way of doing things.

And he also gave me the decided impression that he regarded a man as the head of his household, that he expected to determine the ways of that household in all things.

It is my firm belief that he persuaded Barbara Hutton to give up her American citizenship and that she did it in an effort to make her second marriage a success.

COUNT SWAYED HER

It would, I think, be the Count's honest conviction that a wife should be of the same nationality as he.

America was a little startled at Barbara's second titled foreign marriage. But the reaction was utterly different to it than it had been to the Mdivani union.

For some reason, the American public—to whom Barbara belongs in a very special way—rather liked the looks of this Dane.

His title was authentic if not important. His reputation was good—at least nothing sensational was known about him. There was no talk of million dollar settlements upon the Count.

In fact, the very general impression was that while not a millionaire he had some means of his own, had worked for his living, he had absolutely nothing of the glib about him.

The only thing was that every-

IN GOLDEN DAYS
Babs and Her Count
Before Love Fled

body sort of wished Barbara had married an American. Now, here she was, flitting off to London again, married to a foreigner, spending her money in Europe, consistently instead of in her own country.

BABY CHANGED ALL

The truth is that Barbara was very unhappy in America. In her, there has always been a very simple, feminine, young desire to be liked. When she first began to go about socially she knew the Woolworths hadn't been regarded as of importance socially. As she grew older, she realized what her millions meant.

Up to the time of her baby's birth, Barbara was still the spoiled, pretty, million dollar baby.

The birth of her son made a change in her so complete that it was almost unbelievable. I know that the first time I saw her after that I could hardly believe it was Barbara.

Motherhood did part of it. But the fact that she so nearly died had a great deal to do with it. There were many long days and hours when they didn't think she was going to get well.

She lay in the gorgeous stately bed in the magnificent London house, and saw her son, held him for the first time—and in her ear believed that it was also the last time.

But doggedly, determinedly, the little Hutton girl refused to die.

Tried Her Best To be Happy With Count

Die and leave her baby to be brought up without a mother, as she had been? Die and leave him alone—with $25,000,000?

That was her one thought. Not to leave her baby.

"I suppose everybody in America hoped I would die," Barbara said to me.

There you have the reason for Barbara's living abroad, for her marrying abroad. She actually believed that her death would be welcome to her own country, that she disliked that had somehow grown up around her would make people glad if she died.

I know that Barbara took the greatest pains always to see that the count was regarded as the head of the house. Everything was referred to him.

"He wants so much to make me happy," she said.

"Are you coming back to America?" I asked them, and I noticed that Barbara waited and let her husband answer.

"My wife wishes to bring up her son as a Yankee," he said. "If Barbara wants to go home—and home to her is America—we will go. I have discovered that she loves America very much."

Yet within a year of that time, within a year of the time they said those things to me, Barbara Hutton did come to America—only to leave it forever. She came to give up her American citizenship.

Corrigan's Own Story of Flight

I saw the hills of a countryside that I knew could not possibly be California.

There was no brush below me as there would be on the California coast. I saw a few small fishing boats and these as well as everything else beneath me were unfamiliar in their aspect.

Then I began to get suspicious of myself and check up on my compass. I found I had been flying outward instead of west.

That was about noon today. Then I headed on still farther east and later found myself some miles north of what turned out to be Baldonnel.

By that time I was beginning to realize I must be over Ireland and I headed back for Baldonnel because I knew there must be an airport there.

That's the whole story, except that as soon as I landed I called up the United States legation in Dublin and told them who I was and what I had done.

They said they had never heard of me. I guess they thought I was someone trying to play a joke. They hung up the phone.

So far as other details of the flight are concerned, I lived on chewing gum most of the way over except for a few pieces of chocolate.

I actually did cross the ocean by mistake. My compass was wrongly set and that resulted in my flying in an easterly direction. I certainly was surprised when I found I was over Ireland instead of Los Angeles.

When I sighted Baldonnel airport I decided to come down and landed approximately 29 hours after taking off. I had only 15 gallons of gas left when I made land.

Corrigan 'Flabbergasts' U. S. Air Officials

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The Atlantic flight of Douglas P. Corrigan in a "home-made" plane frankly flabbergasted the Air Commerce Bureau today.

Officials were so astonished that they could not think immediately what to do about Corrigan's hopping off without a permit.

One official said, "It ain't right."

BUREAU HEAD SMILES

Corrigan neither asked nor received a permit to fly to Europe. Regulations provide for penalties ranging from a fine to revocation of a pilot's license in such cases.

Dennis P. Mulligan, chief of the Air Commerce Bureau, said he had postponed the question of punishment.

"It's a great day for the Irish," he commented with a broad grin.

Instead of worrying about Corrigan's punishment, Mulligan said, "Right now I want to make every effort to keep him from flying back."

CORRIGAN'S NAME TICKLES IRISH CONSUL

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)

—Leo Thomas McCauley, Irish consul-general, said, "We claim him for our very own," today when told Douglas Corrigan had flown to Ireland.

"To a man with a name like Corrigan," said the consul-general, "all things are possible."

McCauley declined, however, to say whether the flier had obtained an Irish visa on a passport.

All Corrigans Hail Hop Hero

"Twas a great day for the Corrigan today and they joined in cheering their intrepid namesake. Douglas P. Corrigan, for his surprise transatlantic flight in a $900, nine-year-old airplane.

Said Michael J. Corrigan, real estate dealer and insurance broker of Crescent street, Waltham: "It was a fine feat, one that took courage and intuition. I'm tickled to death to see another Corrigan make good."

Joseph Corrigan of Pierce street, Hyde Park, head of a contracting firm, went even further. He said:

"It's a great thing, but the boy's no relation of mine. He's got too much brains."

J. H. Corrigan, head of a Boston conveying machinery company, added:

"I guess the luck of the Corrigan was with him. It was a fine and courageous flight."

"CAMEL BUYS MY BEST TOBACCO"

ROBERT OAKLEY tells what that means to a smoker

BEING A TOBACCO PLANTER, I'M QUALIFIED TO SAY WHO BUYS FINER TOBACCO. THAT MEANS CAMEL. JUST LAST YEAR, CAMEL BOUGHT THE BEST GRADES OF MY CROP. LIKE MOST PLANTERS, I SMOKE CAMELS. THERE'S A LOT OF CONTENTMENT IN KNOWING YOU ARE SMOKING FINER TOBACCO

MEN who grow and grade tobacco are frank about the difference in cigarettes. Knowing that finer tobacco is bought for Camels, tobacco planters are steady Camel smokers. Like millions of other smokers, you too will find that there's a world of added pleasure in Camel's FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCO.

"WE SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE WE KNOW TOBACCO" PLANTERS SAY

Gaeta Case Pair Seek Full Liberty

In defiance of underworld threats of vengeance for their part in naming the fugitive James Preston as slayer of Louis Gaeta in Revere last November, Samuel "Chinaman" Zarensky of that city and Michael Kingsley of Everett, now held in bail of $50,000 each in Norfolk prison colony, will demand their freedom within a few days.

Both men have already been accorded the rare privilege of leaving the prison colony daily under State police guard to visit their homes and North Shore beach resorts.

Attorney Sydney Zuker, their counsel, declared today that as soon as Judge Frederick W. Fosdick returns from his vacation, he will file a writ of habeas corpus for their release.

Judge Fosdick originally committed the pair to Norfolk when informed by Attorney General Dever that they faced imminent revenge from friends of Preston after they identified him as the Gaeta murderer before a Suffolk grand jury.

New Blast Spreads Oil Fire

WELLSVILLE, N. Y., July 18 (AP)—A spectacular explosion this morning spread new havoc in the $15,000,000 Sinclair Oil Company refinery after three men were killed and 75 injured in a chaos of fire and explosions last night, but firemen finally appeared to be bringing the fire under control.

A storage tank containing 2500 barrels of naphtha exploded shortly before daybreak with a deafening roar.

No one was reported injured, but a similar tank, exploding last night, skyrocketed clear across the nearby Genesee River and killed three spectators on the opposite bank.

Some Don'ts for Pimples

It is a common mistake to think that pimples are caused by dirt on the face. While cleanliness is important, it is not the only factor. Pimples are often caused by internal factors, such as poor diet, lack of sleep, and hormonal imbalances. It is important to avoid picking at your face, as this can lead to scarring and infection. Instead, use a gentle cleanser and moisturizer to keep your skin healthy.

Getting Up Nights Often Caused By Weak Kidneys

If you are getting up at night often, it may be a sign of weak kidneys. The kidneys are responsible for filtering waste from your blood and maintaining fluid balance. When they are weak, you may experience frequent urination, especially at night. This can be caused by a variety of factors, including age, diet, and lifestyle. It is important to consult with a doctor to determine the cause and receive appropriate treatment. In some cases, natural remedies like kidney beans and watermelon can help to strengthen the kidneys.

By HELEN PAYNE

I am not afraid of tomorrow, for I have seen yesterday, and I love today:

To you wish you could trade your handwriting for a new one. A lot of people do, but they don't know how to go about it.

New personalities are not made in the street like Aladdin's lamp. They are turned out to be made in the quiet, private workshop of the mind.

Change a new person in how you write. The initial step is the wish, but money wishing will get you nowhere.

You have to wait something hard enough to really DO something about it. The art of handwriting is not magic, but it can be developed into a powerful tool for self-expression and communication.

CHANGES REVEALED
The following samples of my writing were written by a young lady. The first one was more than a year ago, the second one, a recent sample of her writing. Notice how she has developed her personality in this composition.

God grant that to you

There is a quick and effective way to relieve asthma symptoms. The key is to use a combination of natural remedies and medical treatments. Deep breathing exercises can help to loosen mucus and improve lung function. Additionally, using an inhaler as prescribed by your doctor can provide immediate relief. It is important to stay hydrated and avoid triggers that can worsen your asthma.

Advertisement

It shows a definite change in her personality. The first one was written in a hurried, nervous hand, while the second one is more confident and relaxed.

The handwriting now tells a story of a person who is more at ease with herself and the world around her. It is a testament to the power of the mind to change and grow.

WINS NEW POSITION

She has now won a new position in the business world. Her improved handwriting has helped her to stand out from the competition and secure a promotion. This is a clear example of how a change in one's external appearance can lead to a change in one's internal life.

It is important to remember that change is a process. It takes time and effort to develop a new personality. But with patience and practice, it is possible to achieve the results you desire.

Fill in the coupon for a personal analysis of YOUR handwriting, or you may send in a sample of any person's handwriting you would like analyzed.

DAILY RECORD

Boston After Dark

By JACK CONWAY

ARTHUR L. GOULD, Superintendent of Boston Schools, is making a survey of the entire school system these warm summer days . . . And this survey has already revealed that there are numerous vacant class rooms in some of the new, palatial schools that have been erected in recent years . . . In some of the congested areas, there are not sufficient rooms to care for Young America seeking an education.

Politicians interested in land deals had more to say in the selection of spots for school buildings than educators, who have figures showing the locations where the greatest number of children reside . . . The School Committee is still on record by a vote of 3 to 2 for the closing of the Boston Teachers' College where the girls in families of moderate means are able to secure the necessary education to enable them to become teachers in the Boston schools.

If the Teachers' College is closed, it will be necessary for a girl to be a graduate of a college where the tuition fee is $400 to $800 a year to enable her to enter the Boston school service . . . Firemen, policemen, letter carriers and other persons in the $2000 a year salary bracket cannot pay the high tuition fees for their daughters asked for by the average college.

Judge Emil Fuchs has notified Mayor Maurice J. Tobin that Governor Charles F. Hurley is willing to play first base for either the policemen or the firemen at the great charity day at Fenway Park on August 1 . . . Governor Hurley also has pledged the aid of the various state departments to Boston's big day for its poor and unfortunate.

One Business Without Depression

REGISTRAR OF Probate Arthur Sullivan says his business is one that never goes into a depression period.

"People must be wiser than we have been in domestic differences," said Sullivan. "Domestic differences, whether they lead to divorce actions or not, are the costly of children, are seldom compromised both sides are unyielding and it is usually necessary to decide the issues in court."

The Probate Court recognizes a husband in awarding alimony and also in the amount given for separate support . . . In boom times, the awards are larger than those handed down when there is a business depression . . . Even the courts recognize it is impossible to get behind out of a state . . . No man can be expected to pay to a warring spouse more than he can reasonably afford.

Baseball's Greatest Fan

Mrs. Anne J. Gagnon, of Goffstown, N. H., is my idea of a No. 1 Baseball Fan . . . suffering from a paralytic condition of the legs, she and her husband and Harold Hunsley, driver of a Red Sox game . . . Two days ago she called Mrs. Gagnon to a box seat, where she sat for the last time . . . Mrs. Gagnon knows the names and batting averages of all of the players and was deeply grieved when Lefty Grove's pitching arm went dead on him.

Former Governor James M. Curley has joined the Hatherly Golf Club at North Scituate . . . The Curleys have a summer house facing the ocean a short distance from the Cliff House . . . Judge John Mahoney, former secretary to Governor Hurley, has also located at North Scituate for the summer . . . I met Judge Mahoney having dinner with Mrs. Mahoney and a party of friends at Hugo's . . . Before becoming secretary to Governor Hurley, Judge Mahoney told me he and Mrs. Mahoney, who is also an attorney, never missed having luncheon together over a period of 20 years.

$12,000 a Week Breakage Loss

Lou Smith is my authority for the statement the loss of the breakage at Rockingham Park last week cost the track $12,000 . . . This money now goes to the bettors . . . Col. Dave Egan, publicity director at the track, has secured a record which plays "Pennies from Heaven" after the first race each day . . . When $2 bettors go broke, they now wager pennies with each other.

By Henry V. Thompson. Starting at 10:30 a.m. of the summer, Henry Carter Lodge, Jr. disappeared in a dark cloud, a black horse following his every move . . . On July 1, a black horse of the Luna Club came to a halt in front of the Lodge for May . . .

Samuel Insull Failed But He TRIED

SAMUEL INSULL has had a meteoric rise and fall in Paris penniless.

The great structure he once tried to build has crumbled and he has crushed him to the earth.

He undertook more than he could perform. Nevertheless, he tried to do great things and progress is made by those who try even though they fail and by those who fail by trying.

It is the builders, the endeavorers, the visionaries, the adventurers, who have made America.

Those who adventure too far often lose, but their vision and their failure contribute something to the future of the world.

The pole was not reached by Henry Hudson but the endeavors of all those before him and those who follow him find their part toward having the pole and opening the way. Achievement is difficult.

Optimism is easy.

In contemplating Insull's career one can consider so much that he failed to do, so much that he achieved, so much that he lost, so much that he gained.

Warner Bros. Have Propaganda Story

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, July 18 (I.N.S.)—The Warner boys, Harry and Jack, are knee-deep in a propaganda venture which will deal with the disturbing elements now trying to undermine the world.

"Concentration Camp" is the arresting title and while it sounds as if it should be said in German or in Austria, Warner are emphatic in stating it treats of no particular country.

Vincent Sherman, the man who has given the story a sort of "It Can't Happen Here" flavor. The action centers around an emigrant family and their experiences in one of the dream camps. Already cast are Humphrey Bogart and the Dead End kids with Lew Ayler in the leading role.

Louella Parsons

Maxine City in their house truck this coming week in an ordinary trailer if you please. Hedy Gattai and Jackie Coogan say the story has passed their by and they have no date with him; the Paula Stone-Wayne Morris romance is better than a firecracker and this time it isn't so publicly stunted; I wouldn't be surprised if Anne Brown, in spite of all the denials, didn't one day marry Buddy Adair, then kill the fatted calf at El Encino, Mexico, Ramon Novarro's home town, when he visits there next week for the first time in twenty years. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Playbills at Theaters

Wouldn't you know that as the publicity of Howard Hughes' thrilling "and the world might start the aviation picture cropping up like mushrooms again?" But I must say "Twentieth Century" has got to be a feather in the cap of the first female aviator, Amelia Earhart. BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON, MONDAY, JULY 18, 1933

The American Way

The Editor Says: Down comes the white flag! Up goes the emblem of optimism. The country, weary of depression and blundering, is turning again to the road that leads to prosperity.

Mr. B. C. Forbes, writing in the Boston Evening American, expresses well the beneficial results of new union of all forces for recovery.

"The verdict of the stock market is that business is to become better," he says.

"Already the rise must be regarded as more than a mere flash in the pan. That the optimism in Wall Street has improved sentiment all over the land cannot be questioned. Not a few commodity and raw material prices have since joined the upward procession.

"Not only so, but even wholesale and retail ordering has been quickened in many lines."

Let us make up our minds NOW that this is ONLY THE BEGINNING, and let us continue to work together unitedly for the happy tomorrow that will make us forget the dismal yesterday.

That has ever been and will always be THE AMERICAN WAY.

PRESIDENT GREEN of the American Federation of Labor has pledged his organization, which claims responsibility for enactment of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, to the support of any necessary amendments to the law. He has said:

"We repeat that the Act has been applied in many instances in a way we never dreamed of. CLEARLY OUT OF ACCORD WITH ITS LETTER AND SPIRIT, by those with authority to administer it."

The Wagner Act should, of course be amended. Its present weakness is its inadequate provision for impartial justice and equal responsibility for workers and employers affected by the legislation.

However sound and constructive Congress intends the Act to be, this, as every writer and adequately considered law has been made an INSTRUMENT OF CONFLICT in national affairs. It has been most utterly harmful to labor and industry and has created a wide and immeasurably short of the sound and healthy life of all.

Consequently President Green wisely advises, it should be amended.

HOWARD HUGHES, refusing to take credit for his own success and the world's admiration and insisting that his four companies are the only ones that have won the country's praise.

His modesty is almost as remarkable as his amazing performance.

One of the great hopes of the future is the flight of the airplane, and Howard Hughes has proved America's leadership in the present modern industry of aviation.

His modesty and would like a large leaf from Howard Hughes, the son of a Gentleman."

The Political Parade

BY GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
WASHINGTON, July 18.

THE true significance of the nomination of Senator Van Nuys by the Indiana Democratic State Convention has been temporarily lost sight of, but in reality it stands out like a chocolate tramp in a box of marshmallows.

The significance lies in the fact that a member of the Roosevelt Administration, scarcely less important than a Cabinet officer, has ordered the political machine which he controls to make him the Democratic "favorite son" of Indiana for the 1940 Presidential nomination.

Indiana's votes in the next Democratic national convention will be cast for Paul V. M. Nutt, United States high commissioner in the Philippines.

To that gaudy office he was appointed by the President whom he now seeks to succeed.

MEMBERS of the Cabinet and politicians holding other exalted offices do not announce their candidacy against their own President without first ascertaining that such action would be entirely agreeable to the President.

If Cornell Hall should announce today that he was a candidate for the nomination in 1940, it would be considered only as meaning that the Secretary of State had received assurances from the President that he would not be a candidate in 1940.

The same would be true of any other member of the Cabinet. Why, then, should we respect to High Commissioner M. Nutt?

YOU CAN find a number of Democratic Senators who will tell you confidentially that they have been asked to run for President. But they will not do so until they have received the approval of the President.

That the question has arisen in Washington as to whether Mr. Nutt also has received such a White House confidence.

The circumstantial evidence is that Mr. Nutt has been told just that.

He knows none better that as things stand today nobody other than Mr. Roosevelt himself will be nominated by the next Democratic National Convention without the approval of the President.

No Democrat nominated against Mr. Roosevelt's wishes and thus deprived of the President's support in the campaign, could hope to be elected.

So Mr. Nutt may know what he is doing.

Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

NEVER ask a husband where he has been or what he has been doing. He'll tell you only as much as he wants you to know, anyway, and nobody likes an investigating committee.

Never correct a husband's grammar or criticize his manners or clothes. No man notices such the idea of entering a reformatory. If he's good enough for you to live with, he's good enough to associate with your friends. Just let it be. And who knows a better secret?

If you follow all these rules, you will never see the bright light of your husband's eyes, and you will manage to keep the glimmer on marriage as long as you want to. For the version which a man loves most in a wife are the virtues of omission.

What of Today, Tomorrow?

Recovery Program Aids Textile Mills

The Federal Government is setting into motion a spending and lending program at a cost of more millions than the price of the Civil War.

Everywhere evidence can be found for favorable reaction, a gentle upward swing in employment, production and increased buying.

In New England the heartbeat of industry is best examined in the textile areas.

TODAY Lawrence, textile terminal of New England, reports clearing skies—with a few reservations. TOMORROW, in the opinion of Mayor Walter A. Griffin, there is bound to be improvement.

In this article, the first of a series on New England industry, he explains why.

By WILLIAM MICHELFELDER

Boston Evening American, Staff Writer

The skilled machine operator, in new overalls, takes an experimental poke at cheese sandwiches in his lunch box.

It is 7 a. m. and he's going back to work in a Lawrence textile mill, the first time in seven months. He owes several family doctor bills, a grocery account and $22.60 on a player piano.

He stands outside the smoky, wine-colored brick factory where machines are already making their first rumble of the day, machines which need 2250 men and women to make them spew wool and worsted.

He tells us:

"It feels good to be taking your lunch to work again. I think things are picking up, don't you?"

We really didn't know, so we went to City Hall to find Mayor Walter A. Griffin, who said things were picking up "with a couple of reservations."

He announced:

"The New Deal's spending and lending program has already made its effect, naturally. There is increased buying which means the mills have more orders. In the last few months we have sold more than the note of optimism because there is a trend toward recovery."

SEVERAL MAYOR Griffin of our factories are working the five-day week. This is an amazing improvement because many of our mills have been shut down entirely. A few have been operating two or three days a week.

The employment situation is some better.

IN THE PAST FEW MONTHS THE MILL OWNERS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO HIRE FROM 2000 TO 3000 ADDITIONAL OPERATORS. THERE HAS BEEN A REDUCTION IN WELFARE, IN THE PAST FEW WEEKS.

There are percentage gains in retail sales and bank deposits. They are slight gains, it is true, but nevertheless, it means PROGRESS.

Reciprocal trade agreements which allow foreign goods to come into our country after having been manufactured by cheap labor and produced in the raw state at ridiculously low wage levels IS STILL A DISTURBING FACTOR.

In Massachusetts we have industrial workers of high intelligence, the finest labor laws in the country and a high standard of living.

BUT WE CANNOT COMPETE WITH CHEAP FOREIGN LABOR, NOR WITH ANY OTHER COMPETITOR WHO PARALYZES THE INDUSTRY WITH LONG HOURS AND LITTLE MONEY.

"I think the spending program is helping us definitely. The one way to revive and protect New England industry is by intelligent Federal administration.

"We need more of a solid block of employer and employee to stimulate the New Deal toward more minimum wage and hour legislation, SO THAT WE HAVE A BALANCED RATIO THROUGHOUT THE NATION."

I believe conditions will improve if we in Massachusetts and New England continue to keep our heads down and WE MUST NOT STAGNATE AND ALLOW OUR LIVELIHOOD TO BE UNDERMINED BY UNFAIR FOREIGN COMPETITION OR ANY COMPETITION WITHIN OUR OWN COUNTRY."

Lawrence, the greatest worsted center of the country, is ready to install the newest type of machinery ready to take DARING ECONOMIC STEPS once assured that New England industry will be protected.

"Any expert who comes to Lawrence is immediately impressed with the cross-sections of worker intelligence."

"We need no help in holding our own against the world in the quality of products we manufacture."

"It has been Lawrence's tradition, this manufacturing of textiles. WE HAVE NEVER LOST OUR GRIP AND WE NEVER INTEND TO. THE RECESSION TO LAWRENCE IS MERELY A TEMPORARY BLOCKADE TO NORMAL PRODUCTION AND MUNICIPAL LIFE."

"Lawrence looks to the Federal Government with confidence and anticipation. We expect a form of protection which will give the Lawrence workers a wage and hour scale which will permit them really to live."

"I STAND READY ON BEHALF OF THE PEOPLE OF LAWRENCE TO FIGHT FOR THIS NEW TREND TOWARD RECOVERY. WE ARE CO-OPERATING. OUR MILLS AND OUR PEOPLE ARE READY."

(Another TODAY and TOMORROW feature on the subject of textiles will appear on this page in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Debs Make Bows In Two Cities

By BETTY ALDEN

EACH season the deb list contains the names of several double duty debs . . . girls whose position and family connections enable them to make official bows to the society of two cities instead of one.

Two of last winter's double duty debs seem to like the idea of being things by twos so well that they are making it a habit. Helen B. Bird, daughter of Mrs. Bruce Purdie, of Concord, had two debuts, one in Concord and one in St. Louis . . . She danced a two-step in the Vincent Club's musical show and, two weeks ago, announced her engagement to George Leonard Dow, Jr.

One of her best friends, Barbara Winslow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Huston Winslow, of New York, also made two debuts, one in Concord and one in New York. Because the big parties of the Boston deb season come at a different time than most of ours, she was able to attend many affairs in both cities. Yesterday, just two weeks after Helen's engagement was made known, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow announced that Barbara has accepted her partner for a marital journey. He is John David Lannon, son of Mrs. John D. Lannon, also of New York.

Barbara made her bow to Boston society at a novel party in Concord last Columbus Day. The guests, both debs and their escorts, were entertained at luncheon in a rustic big cabin on the Winslow farm, followed by an afternoon of outdoor games. She belongs to the Junior League and is a graduate of the Brearley School.

Her friend, a senior at Harvard, belongs to a number of the exclusive Harvardian clubs such as Hasty Pudding, Iroquois and Phoenix K. K.

Incidentally, even with all those twos, two is not the only number in the case of Helen and Barbara, for they are, respectively the sixth and seventh of last year's Boston deb crop to become engaged . . . So don't say two's two, dearest!

The Boston summer colony will have a wedding to celebrate its annual program this coming weekend when Anne, the third way, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laura G. Treadway, becomes the bride of William Cooper Fowler, of Winnetka, Ill.

Thompson Memorial Hospital in Waltham, Mass., will be the scene of the nuptials, Saturday afternoon, and Miss Jane Arnold of Boston, will be one of the girls to walk in the bride's procession. Mrs. Richard Treadway and Jane Treadway head the list of attendants, with Elizabeth Clark, of Waltham, Mass., Catherine E. Rand, of Framingham, and Harriet C. Roberts, of Framingham, Va., comprising the bridesmaids.

The bride graduated from Mr. Holyoke last month and Mr. Fowler is a Waltham High School senior. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fowler. He is member of athletics at Hatchkins School, Lakeville, Ct.

Alice Metcalf Marries

Miss Alice Metcalf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Metcalf, of Whitinsville, Mass., became the bride of Second Lieutenant Robert Chambers, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Chambers, of New York and Woods Hole, in New London, Ct., Saturday afternoon.

A wedding reception took place at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. George Frederick Brown, of New London.

Miss Frances Miller, of Lynn, was maid of honor and the four bridesmaids were from New York and New London. The bridegroom's brother, William Nesbitt Chambers, was best man and the six ushers, all officers of the U. S. Navy, formed an arch with their crossed sabers as the newlyweds left the church.

Shikat to Try
For Quick Win

Confident He Will Pin Casey

By JACK CONWAY

I HAVE seldom met an athlete as determined and as confident in his own ability as is Dick Shikat of Germany, who will try to lift the world's heavyweight wrestling crown from the brow of Steve Casey of Ireland at a Paul Bowser show at Fenway Park tomorrow night.

Mr. Boston

"I shall score two quick falls over Casey," Shikat told me. "I have trained carefully for tomorrow night's battle and will be prepared to set a dizzy pace from the start. This is my opportunity to once more prove I am the best wrestler in the world."

"I got my last opportunity to prove my real ability when I took the world's title from Dan O'Mahony in the New York Garden. At the time Danno charged he was robbed, but such a claim was ridiculous. I applied a hammerlock to O'Mahony, and he told George Bothner, the referee, he wished to give up. Everybody who knows anything about wrestling knows that when I get a hammerlock on an opponent he is either going to give up or I must break his arm. There is not any getting away from such a hold when it is properly applied."

"Casey has been building up a defense to block my hammerlock. Maybe I shall surprise the Irishman by pinning him with some other hold."

"I do not rate Casey much higher as a wrestler than I do O'Mahony, and I have tossed Danno twice."

"I have been criticized for using O'Mahony a bit rough in our recent Garden bout. Certainly Danno has not any right to object to my putting on the heat. Danno always prided himself in his punching power? That isn't wrestling, is it? Yet if he could have done it O'Mahony would have knocked every tooth out of my mouth with his right hand punches."

"One must protect himself in wrestling as in other sports. The mat game isn't a Sunday school pastime."

"When Casey goes to Fenway Park tomorrow night, I hope he is prepared for a hard, grueling match. I am not going to ask any favors from the Irishman, and he can expect none from me."

Casey's Title Belts at Stake

THE CHAMPIONSHIP belt awarded to Casey when he won from Louis Tamm, and also the belt he secured when he defeated Yvon Robert, will be at stake tomorrow night. Dick Shikat has been designated as Paul Bowser's challenger and will be presented to the world at the Fenway Park show.

Casey's success in wrestling has been phenomenal. The big Irishman has been the top star in the wrestling world since he defeated Yvon Robert.

Since he has been training at Harry Kelley's Gym for the past week and a half, he has been at the peak of his form when he enters the ring against Shikat. It is generally agreed that Shikat has the edge on Casey in the matter of wrestling ability, while Steve has the margin in the matter of strength. Casey is also younger than Shikat, and in a long battle the Irishman's youth will be of the tremendous help to him.

This will be a very exciting wrestling show of the Summer, and is expected to attract a large crowd.

Long Races Prove Popular

THE DISTANCE races have made a bit with the fans at Rockingham Park. During the past week there were 48 races at the Salem, N. H., track, and of these 25 were distance affairs and 23 sprints.

When a race is a mile or more the public has a better chance to enjoy them. The grandstand crowd sees the horses going past them twice during a race.

There is also a greater element of luck in sprints than in distance affairs. In short races, a horse is often put out of the contention by being humped at the start. In long races a horse can have some bad breaks in the early part of a race, and yet come on to win.

Will Not Hurry Lefty Grove

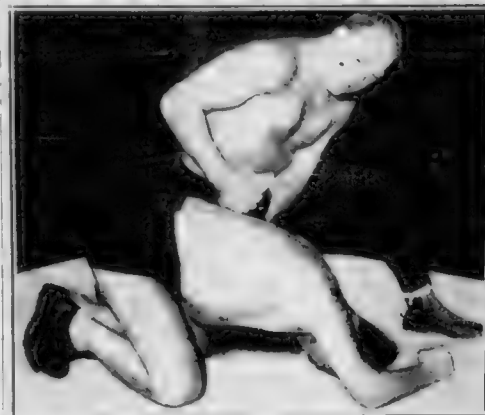

IT IS NOT the intention of Dr. Lyle O'Brien of the Red Sox management to hurry Lefty Grove in his effort to regain full use of his pitching arm. Grove, at the age of 35, must surround himself with every possible precautionary measure if he is to stay a baseball pitcher.

The case of Schoultz Rowe and Paul Igan proved that even young pitchers cannot take risks with their costly throwing arms. This is even more true with a veteran like Grove who at the most only has one or two more years of baseball usefulness ahead of him.

Has Showdown With Bowser

A referee for the world heavyweight wrestling championship battle between Steve Casey of Ireland and Dick Shikat of Germany will be Paul Bowser. Bowser's name was announced at a conference among promoters Paul Bowser, the wrestler and their manager.

Bowser is expected to explode at the session as Shikat has informed Bowser that he will not stand for a Boston referee.

At the same time Bowser declared he was not going to obtain a license for the match.

"You must waiting till pull out of the match, but I am going to raise Hell-high for an impartial, out of town official," Shikat emphatically stated.

"That's a lot of boshum about it being too late. There are a lot of good referees in New York dying for work."

Why didn't Bowser try to get an out-of-town man all last week. He promised to get one when the bout was made.

Winchester Four-Ball Tomorrow

By BILL GRIMES

And now we come to the annual Winchester Country Club four-ball invitation.

On the morrow, a field of between 75 and 80 teams will engage in an 18-hole qualifying round, the low sixteen to receive assignments in the championship flight.

Art Rogers of the home club, and Bobby Hood, Salem, topped the Winchester field a year ago, beating Jessie F. Gifford and Fred F. Hale in the final.

Rogers, whose student at Oxford, played a much golf this spring and ruined home pounds under weight, as he cannot spare ounces, let alone pounds.

"Augie" has been ordered to refrain from golf until such a time as he has recovered his lost poundage.

With Rogers out of the running Hood was obliged to seek a new partner. He asked Don Ritchie, Tedesco, and they will be the ranking favorite.

Woodland club will have Ted Elshoff and Joe Fay as its top ranking team while Sandy Burr will have Judge J. W. McManis and Leo Brown.

Commonwealth has Charlie Crane and Conney Weiland. Johnny Bushnell, who hasn't missed a four ball tournament since he first broke 150, will team with Joe Lynch, who seems to be making the rounds of four ball partners.

Bushnell is playing his home course and should furnish some worthwhile assistance to the former state champion.

Joe Looney, who was a well known figure in caddy and junior competition a few years ago, while carrying the colors of Arimont, is entered with a "dark horse" from Trappelo, one Ash Lewis, whose game, according to Pro. Willie Duffly, is developing so rapidly that his handicap is being slashed weekly.

With the exception of the championship flight, all divisions at Winchester will play from handicaps.

After the qualifying round tomorrow, there will be two rounds of match play for all divisions on Wednesday, and the semi-finals and finals will be played on Thursday.

Then, off the boys will go for Bald Peak, where a medal and match play invitation is scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and where Ned Peterson, Oakley, will defend his title.

Dean Shackles Bees In Mound Comeback

and in that frame a triple by Elbert Fletcher, followed by Ray Mueller's double, accounted for Boston's only tally.

The Cubs won for Dizzy by scoring one run in their half of the fifth and then adding two more in the seventh. Reynolds opened the fifth with a double, then scored from third when Cavarretta singled.

The pair in the seventh came when Demaree doubled and scored on Collins' triple. Collins talked on Cavarretta's long fly.

Dean's every move was the signal for a mad ovation from the crowd, and when the pitcher walked from the mound in the ninth, every man, woman and child in the ball park stood and cheered him to the echo. Of Diz ate it up.

His first remark upon returning to the dug-out was so typical and so expected that not a man smiled. Said Diz:

"Well, boys, I told you so."

And that was more truth than poetry, for Dean has been telling them so right from the start—that sore arm or no sore arm he could pitch rings around most of the pitchers in the major leagues. He certainly "pitched rings around" Boston's Jim Turner, no mean hurler in his own right. Turner allowed seven hits but couldn't match the Dean pace.

Kramer Rates Revere Dogs

By MURRAY KRAMER

With the completion of the eighth race at Revere tonight, the eight outstanding greyhounds which will race in the famed Boston American Night Final Derby next Thursday night shall have been selected.

Four potential champions qualified for the richest purse of the season Saturday night, and the remaining four will be determined in tonight's second elimination. Cash, My Partner, My Mabel, night are Wilful, Bi Deemaid, Black Cash, My Partner, My Mabel, Jean's Pride, Fancy Jim and Red Raider.

HAS WON 6 OF 12

In looking for the winner, it is impossible to go by Wilful. This mien has been the most consistent feature race dog at Wonderland Park this year, having won six out of 12 "hot box" events and finishing second on four other occasions. Wilful would much prefer the outside instead of the three slot she has drawn, but with Red Raider in the two box and Bi Deemaid on the other side little need be feared.

Red Raider is a slow breaker, while Bi Deemaid goes wide and should cause no trouble.

The big problem comes in attempting to select the other three greyhounds which will be in there to qualify for the big race.

At this writing, the other three look like Jean's Pride, Bi Deemaid and My Partner.

FANCY JIM SLEEPER

Black Cash, My Mabel and Red Raider on cold form cannot be placed among the first four. All three are inconsistent and their spotty performances rule them out.

Fancy Jim, the eighth greyhound in the big race, is a real "sleeper." He has the eight box which he likes.

Off his 1937 form he would be a real threat. This season, though, he has been running in all sorts of hard luck and just can't seem to watch.

KRAMER BOWLS 'EM OVER

Murray Kramer, Boston Evening American ace handicapper at Wonderland Park, overshadowed his feat of picking four winners last Thursday night by popping up with five on Saturday evening.

New Issue, his top choice in the first, won and paid $9.60.

Big Buddy was the next winner, in the fifth, and he netted $9.00; White Helen captured the seventh, at a $9.50 payoff; Court Jester, Kramer's best bet, took the ninth and returned $23.20, and to make the night perfect, Dancing Girl took the tenth to enable her supporters to collect $6.70.

Kramer's selections appear daily in the Boston Evening American. His handicaps include detail on the last three races of every greyhound in addition to the times they turned in over their last race and best race.

This is the most complete greyhound form published.

In one game last week, the hit-and-run signal was on three times, and each time the batter never even lifted his bat off his shoulder to take a cut at the pitch. The next time, it's going to cost somebody some dough. . .

Georgia Coleman, who can swim like a fish, is demonstrating a new lifeboat out on the Coast, since she's been up and around again. Dizzy Dean admits he doesn't shake off Gabby Hartnett's signals any more. . . Ever since he tried it in Lou Gehrig's all-star game—and Lou Gehrig whacked a homer on the pitch. . . Incidentally, how does that four-hitter the Diz tossed yesterday make his lawsuit against the Cardinals look? . . .

Believe it or not, the Dodgers lead the league in stealing bases. . . Can it be the Babe Ruth influence? . . . New York writers who went down the bay to meet Helen Jacobs come home think the "Jake" is aces as a sport. . . She wouldn't hear or say a thing that even faintly resembled an alibi. . . The Jackie Jurich-Small Montana go, if it's sanctioned as a flyweight title brawl, may be staged in Australia. . . The big league pitchers' union is going to sue the next guy that says flingers can't hit. . . 14 of them have clouted homers this year, including two each by Lefty Lee and Monte Stratton (White Sox), Curt Davis (Cardinals), Spud Chandler (Yanks) and Clay Bryant (Cubs). . .

One consolation for Lefty Grove

—they can't yank his teeth for his sore arm. . . all of 'em went the last time his flipper went bad. . . Kay Loring, the trapshooters' Boswell, points out that southpaws may go hot in baseball, but they're not so hot in his business. . . Not one portlander ever won the Grand American Handicap, the trapshooters' World Series, says Ray, but maybe Fred Eichen of Coffeyville, Kan.; Herman Peterson, Dillon, Mont.; or Spencer Olin, East Alton, Ill., may fool the folks this year. . . Sam Narron, now with the Rochester farm, may be the answer to the Cardinals' prayer for a first assistant to Catcher Mickey Owen. . . He's really hot. . .

Oscar Vitt says he's benched Moose Solters for keeps, because the big fellow's been fielding like Babe Herman used to. . . Jimmy Bradwell, 44, of the street place went B-U-T. . . Which is tough luck for one of the grander guys. . . Billy Evans, scouting the northern league around up-state New York and New England. . .

Moose Solters figures Red Durand, third-sacker from Holy Cross, has the makings. . . Incidentally, the Saranac Lake team in the loop has three other collegiates besides Durand—Eddie Collins Jr., from Yale; Walt Shinn, Penn foot-baller, and Hank Borowy, the Fordham flinger who may wind up with the Yanks. . . Bob Seede, up with the Yanks' Newark farm, knocked in 17 runs his first 18 games with the Giants. . . Maybe he'll be teaching Bill Terry's boys how to hit like those wallpapers across the Harlem. . .

Helen Jacobs To Play Here

Has No Criticism of Mrs. Moody

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Helen Hull Jacobs, who saw a great "comeback" go wrong at Wimbledon when she successfully fought off the effects of a shoulder injury and lack of practice in the early rounds of the All-England tennis championships only to get hurt again in the final match against Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, is back in America.

For the reporters who went down the bay to meet her ship, she had these things to say:

- (1) She has no criticism to make of Mrs. Moody's action in playing out the match without suggesting a rest.
- (2) She hopes to get a lot of work done on a new novel during her convalescence.
- (3) It will take two or three weeks for her to recover from the injury to an ankle tendon, and then she hopes to play in the Essex County Club tournament at Manchester, Mass., and the national championships.
- (4) She thinks Don Budge is doing playing better tennis than ever.
- (5) She has no criticism of Mrs. Moody.

EAGER TO PLAY AGAIN

The interview developed into a "sparring" match between the reporters, who hoped to hear some steaming remarks about the match which drew a lot of criticism from English tennis commentators and spectators, and Miss Jacobs, who didn't want to make them.

Miss Jacobs placed her shots better.

"I have no 'biases,' if that is what you are looking for," she replied, "but I am a tennis player."

"I'll be very happy to get back playing tennis," she said when they asked if she'd like "another crack" at Mrs. Moody.

Then when photographers appeared, she handed a cane she carried to one of the newsmen, saying: "Please don't let the cane get into the picture. I can stand without it for a picture, but it's a tremendous comfort when I walk."

Of her match with Mrs. Moody, she said, "When it was all over, I congratulated her and said I was sorry I wasn't in condition to give her a better match."

"I didn't want a rest because I wanted to get the match over with. I was satisfied with my game but I just couldn't go on, and why hold up a match? She was playing very well, I thought."

BUDGE "MARVELOUS"

Turning to other subjects, she said she had no intention of retiring from competition; that she intended to remain in the East indefinitely, at least until after the national championships in September.

"We saw a great young prospect over there in an English girl named Jean Nicol," she added. "She's only 15 and has everything except experience."

BEST BET—MISS BAILEY—SIXTH RACE

TAUNTON, July 18—The first elimination race for Thursday's Bristol County Derby will be staged at the Taunton dog track tonight. Rural Circuit seems to have the strongest chance of winning, though either Fash Down Understudy or Comrade Carens could upset these calculations.

The second elimination will be run tomorrow night.

My best bet tonight is Miss Bailey in the sixth race.

Despite showers and relatively low temperatures, Boston awoke today.

Up to noon, the mercury hovered only around 70 today, but humidity was 91 per cent, which left the city still gasping and "sticky."

The rain, it was stated, may continue intermittently through tomorrow.

The mercury yesterday reached a high of 89 at 4 p. m. This was 1.1 degrees cooler than the Sunday preceding.

'March' of Labor Wins Backing

Hope that the threatened A. F. of L. "march on the State House" will break the relief deadlock was expressed today.

Both Governor Hurley and Speaker Horace T. Cahill said they would welcome it.

"I'll be waiting for them," said the governor. "I hope they can help get something done."

Cahill declared:

"I can summon the legislature together in a few hours if we have some business on which we can act."

"Therefore, I am for Gatelee's threat if he can force the governor to see the light of day and send in his recommendations."

Labor had blasted Gov. Hurley and the Legislature alike, and labor leaders throughout Massachusetts were meeting to plan the March.

President John F. Gatelee of the state Federation of Labor fired this double-barreled charge:

BUCHAREST, July, 18 (AP) — Dowager, Queen Marie of Rumania, who helped shape the destiny of her country, for a generation, died today in her 63rd year.

The Queen Mother, famed for her beauty, died at her palace at Sinal, the royal summer residence, at 6:25 p. m. (12:25 a. m., Boston time.)

Prime Minister Miron Cristea, who also is patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox Church, celebrated mass in the palace immediately after her passing. Previously he had administered extreme unction.

In Bucharest all public buildings immediately displayed flags at half-staff.

King Carol, her son, and Crown Prince Mihai and Princess Elizabeth of Greece were at the Queen's bedside. Her last illness found her in the same bed in which her husband, King Ferdinand, died in 1927. The Queen had been dangerously ill for most of the past year. However, only Saturday she had returned to Rumania from Dresden after a month in a sanatorium and had been welcomed home ceremoniously.

There was a serious relapse yesterday. Physicians disclosed there had been a hemorrhage on the return from Germany. When another occurred today they announced she was "in very serious condition."

Dealings were slow during the forenoon. Volume broadened somewhat for a brief period after mid-day, but activity slackened again near the final hour and top marks were lowered by profit selling.

Dictator Taboo in U. S.

Says

Joe Kennedy

BOSTON, LINCOLNSHIRE, England, July 18 (INS)—Dictatorship is impossible in America or Great Britain, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy told an audience here today. The ambassador said:

"The thinking people of our two nations will never be lulled into a feeling of false security by the promises of those who claim they can solve our problems for us."

"No despotism, however benevolent in its intent or achievement, can ever flourish in our countries."
